THE WOMAN OF IT

BY MARGUERITE MOORE MARSHALL

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1929
NOVEMBER 11, 1918

"In Flanders fields the poppies grow"—
But Flanders fields are bare once more,
And, ankle-deep in mud, they go,
Those stilled by the cannon's roar,
Whose steps seek some dim goal ahead
Untouched by disembodied red.

The sky is tinted again with rain,
That snaps on the defiant wire,
And scars the few bricks that remain
Beside a long extinguished fire;
It twists the blasted limbs of trees
Into pathetic etchings.

The wind abrades the bitter dawn
That once was music for the lark,
And strange delirium is drawn
Across time, like a livid mark;
A man would give his soul for one
Still moment of oblivion.

But what is this exultant sound
That appies the desolate air,
And like a torrent, sweeps the ground
Great of the horror gathered there?
Peace, when peace seemed an alien word—
A myth—a syllable deferred.

In Flanders fields the poppies bloom,
And since plays a gentle hymn
To the white cross of each tomb
That marks a soldier's term;
"We are the dead," they say, "and not
More slumberers a dream forgot!"
LATERINA JASPER.

The Other Memorial Day

OUR country for eleven years has had two Memorial Days. The first was in May, for the Civil War; the new Day of Memories which the World War established on the eleventh of November. It seems fitting to a woman that at least twice a year, in the green promise of spring and in the golden fulfillment of autumn, we should pause to think of those dead men who as individuals were never to know the fulfillment of life and were to know all its lovely promises—broken.

Women who lived through the Great War hardly need aids for remembering it, whether the men they loved were actually endangered or the women merely shared imaginatively in the terror and suffering of other wives, sweethearts, mothers.

It is today, as announcements have indicated, the veterans' organizations celebrate with joy rather than sorrow. Still they are places of honor to the Gold Star women. The "Joy" of these women and countless others will be in proportion to their hope and faith, strengthened by the K-Logg post and the McDaniel-Spencer conferences, that out of armistice—which is all the world has so far known, beyond its wars—may come final and lasting peace.

NO WOMEN with intelligence and sensitive memory cannot fail to keep to-day as the other Memorial Day. Yet—let us forget—and let younger women, who may not remember, may also not understand—one woman has set down forever, for every other, not only what war is but how it looks, sounds, tastes, feels and smells. One woman has written a real war book, and the simplest, most truthful, if most obvious, summary of Mary Lee's "It's a Great War" is that it's a great book.

Mary Lee was a young American college woman who perhaps saw as much of the war as was given any of her countrywomen to see. She went to France as a civilian employee of the United States Army, serving as secretary to various family cars in Bordeaux and Paris. She did emergency nursing, when the avalanche of wounded bore down on the hospitals. She was a canteen worker in the Zone of Advance and later with the Army of Occupation in Germany.

Through it all—the alternation of back-breaking toil with morale-shattering waiting, the alternation of abominable food and filth with hysterical rage, the alternation of brute and hero and boy and girl and knight in the men among whom she lived—Mary kept eyes and head clear, kept nerves and heart under control, kept her temper except when she could accomplish more by losing it.

What she has written is surely something new in literature and in life—

Features of Suits for Spring

THE suit has proved itself to be a worthy fashion, appearing in winter weights and giving prominence to the tailored trend for spring wear.

Lengthened skirts have a direct bearing on the return to vogue of the suit since short skirts gave many figures the appearance of seeming dumpy. And too, with sports clothes for so long being worn informally at even semi-formal occasions during the daytime, the suit had no special place. Interest now waning in sports attire gave in its actual necessity for country wear, town clothes take the form of suits.

Patou presents mannish suits in plaid, checks and wool crepes and Lanvin uses stiff silk for little tailored suits. The three forms the suit is likely to take include the severely tailored type, the dress and coat ensemble, and the matching skirt and coat of dressmaker persuasion.

Keeping her eye on the box where foods are stored, the practical housewife forestalls any waste that might follow the overlooking of odds and ends. Every item of food there stored does she utilize intelligently and with good results.

What to do with the egg whites that accumulate during the week causes more than one housewife slight concern. When the yolks are a part of the baby's diet, or sauces and salad dressings demand them, the whites fill a cup before many days.

Not every family car has angel cake or white layer or loaf cake. Boiled eggs are not wanted every day, and neither is meringue for pastries.

MARSHMALLOW MOULD

One envelope of gelatin
One-half cup cold water
One cup of sugar
Two cups of hot water
Seven egg whites
Small bottle Marshmallow cherries
Gelatin: six to eight

The simplicity of the pudding is given and the ease with which the ingredients may be combined into a fluffy marshmallow-like cream will appeal alike to cooks of experience and those in the process of acquiring experience.

Whipped cream flavored with a little of the marshmallow syrup will add richness to the dessert when occasion demands it. Almost any nut, dried or candied fruits or flavoring may be used instead of the cherries suggested.

Soften the gelatin in the cold water five minutes. Heat the hot water to the boiling point and dissolve the sugar in it, then stir in the softened gelatin. Whip the egg whites very stiff and continue beating as the hot water-sugar-gelatin mixture is poured over them. Beat well until cool and the cream becomes heavy and luscious looking.

Cut the cherries into-shreds or halves and drain well. Fold the cherries into the marshmallow cream and pile into a large mould or individual moulds. Set in the ice-box to chill—the time may be two or six hours. Serve with candy or angel squares just daintily.

Fear and Your Face

IT MAY be fear of the tucker tape, or fear of losing a job, or of losing love, or of never getting it. Or again it may be a vague haunting fear of the future, or of public opinion, or of the nameless, formless fear that accompanies nerves.

But, nameless or named, fear has a way of sitting on a person and sapping it of youth and love.

Mingle with the crowd some time, a fashionable football crowd or a common everyday parade crowd and count the soft, serene faces. It is much easier to count those, because there are so many many thousands of the other sort. So many tense, tight, drawn faces. So many faces scarred by fear.

Fear, the demon that punches the heart, narrows the eyes, creases the brow and twists the figure. Fear, that changes the music in a voice to noise and robs bodily movement of all grace. Fear, the champion style-cripper.

We may prefer to call it worry, but what is that? Just a pleasant sounding name for fear. We may prefer to blame it on overwork or unharmonious work or a lack of understanding relatives and friends, or even on the climate, but the only person in the world who can rid us of this poison is ourselves.

It is not the business of a beauty column to hand out formulae for the correction of fear—even assuming that there existed such things. No, helping a person to conquer fear is a task for the physicians and the psychoanalysts. But we do want to do a sort of sacred duty to point how very dangerous is this poison to beauty and to charm.

And, paradoxical as it may appear, the fear of the loss of beauty is the most destroying fear of all—to beauty. Of two extreme types of woman, the one who never gives a thought to her looks and the one who spends sleepless nights over every new gray hair and each budding wrinkle, we should prefer instantly to be the former type.

Let us to the tender mercies of old Mother Nature, the skin, the hair and the eyes, the figure and the hands can get along fairly well. But when these delicate organisms are controlled by fear there is precious little hope for them. One can prophesy only one end for them, and that an early end—partial or complete destruction.

Rather never do more to your face than wash it, if the use of beauty preparations is associated in your mind with age and the loss of loveliness. It is wiser, better, of course, to have faith plus beauty preparations, nor not by any means impossible to substitute for thoughts of fear thoughts of faith—try it some time. Some time soon.

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

I HAVE told you time and again that good ideas do not smash you in the face—they do not knock you down—they fit into the mind much as a leaf falls from a bough in the autumn. Listen to this about James Watt, inventor of the modern condensing steam engine: "Early in 1765, while walking on a Sunday afternoon in Glasgow Green, the idea flashed upon him, etc."

After this idea FLASHED UPON HIM he did something and that something has been of inestimable value to the world up to this day. WATCH YOUR IDEAS AND ACT ON THE GOOD ONES.

NOW'S THE TIME TO LOOK OUT

IT is tough enough to make a living in the stock market these days without the wolves of Wall Street butting in. The old oaken bucket shop is a mahogany layout now. But it's still just as active. If you are pondering on fiscal suicide, lay your ear open to a bucketeer's advice. They've got enough hot tips to burn you alive. Subscribe for a thin margin of wet stock. One drop and you're well shaken.

Those bucket boys always let you in on the ground floor. That's where Bluebeard greeted his wives, and the spider had a salon for visiting house flies. The bucket works is a modern convenience for separating the senseless from what little they've got. It is a very intricate piece of machinery. With one operation they mop up and you get wiped out. That gives you a clean slate again. And then a clean profit.

If those bucketeers are straight, then Harry Lauder's cane is a yardstick. Try one and find yourself out. First you slap down a thin margin on a thick cardboard stock. Then you grasp the tucker tape and get measured for a walking jacket of barrel staves. If bucketeers are upright citizens, a sieve is an air-tight compartment.

Here is a specimen of unconfirmed language that comes from the bucket shop. It is the weekly market letter from the highly polished offices of Hook, Line & Sinker, with branches wherever there are roots of evil.

WEEKLY MARKET LETTER
Our advice is very bullish this week. Those who bought semi-convertible bonds last month are now enjoying the air which we gave them.

We are advising all our best clients to buy strictly on margin. You have less to lose and less time to do it in. Our firm enjoys a spotless reputation. We have front and side views of our partners in stripes.

Jerusalem

Until the last moment before arrival in the Holy City, the pious pilgrim sticks to his visions and preconceived notions of exalted beauty, incalculable by beautiful church pictures and well-meaning pastoral exaggerations about the city that was the marvel of antiquity. It is seldom taken into account that the strategic position of Jerusalem, once considered impregnable, constituted a direct challenge to every conqueror and bandit-in-arm Alexander, Shalmanezzer, Titus, Julian, Solomon the Magnificent, to name but a few captives, all tried their hand at capturing Jerusalem. Successive waves of Saracens, Crusaders, Arabs, Turks, destroyed, pillaged and broke down here with varying degrees of savagery. When you look around in this city and suddenly recall that in Solomon's time silver was like dust in the streets here, and then contemplate the brags of refuse and filth in the Arab bazaar, and furthermore, when all the holy sites, clothed with tranquil beauty in your imagination are suddenly reduced to human proportions, you experience a shock and great disillusionment. In this bazaar the Levites of old bought the fine linen for their priestly garb and the jewels that covered the High Priest's breast. Stamped cotton rags from Lancashire mills have taken the place. Arabic sheikhs from Transjordan, on a visit to the Holy City, have left behind their magnificent robes with which the movies have made us familiar. They wear second, third and tenth hand riding breeches that once belonged to General Allenby's Army Service Corps. Incidentally, that's where they got their arms, too. Several Arab tribes were armed by the British against the Turks. When the war was over and the British proceeded to demobilize them, the Arabs had suddenly lost their rifles. The loss was only temporary, however.

Blindness
The most distressing thing in the East is the large number of blind people. You see children playing around together, and suddenly you realize from something awkward and gauche in their gestures and actions, that they are all blind. A row of blind beggars sitting along a wall sunning themselves is pathetic enough, but whole groups of little children groping about aimlessly in all directions or resignedly sitting down, vacantly staring ahead of them, their heads turning in the direction of sounds that interest them, is beyond pathos—it is tragedy. The cause is trachoma, that dread disease. Before your very eyes you see the infection carried from one creature to the other. Flies that swarm over heaps of refuse and filth make straight for the children's faces, fly from sick eyes to healthy eyes, and vice versa. Nothing is done about it, or so little that the measures are hopelessly inadequate. Ghastly spectacles which are to be seen in Jerusalem, Cairo, Alexandria, Damascus, a blind father and mother dragging their blind children behind them. There are hosts of people who resent Western intrusion in the ways of the East. They say we have no right to set ourselves up as tutors of the Orient. That in civilization the East is not our pupil, but our parent. All these things are correct, perhaps. The more since our approach to the East has always been accompanied by force or a menace of force. But, on the other hand, nothing will avail to combat the diseases of the East but Western scientific methods. Tribes are perishing and degenerating all over Africa and the Near East. If this be due indirectly to the harmful influence of the white man's civilization, as some assert, it seems only the more reason for us to intervene.

Youssef
The Barber
A demon of perverse curiosity tempted me to enter a native barber shop recently in Jerusalem. I had often heard the old man saying that while God alone can make the grass grow, it's Hassan the Barber who knows how it is done. But I discovered that Arab barbers know a heap more. My fellow immediately volunteered to desert his combs, brushes and pomades and be my dragoman.

He said he could introduce me to everybody worth knowing in Jerusalem from His Honor the Mayor down to the Anglican Bishop. "How about your customers here?" I asked. "They can't do without you." The fellow almost burst with indignation. He spat with vigor and venom. "The scum of the earth they are. Worthless scoundrels, vile bandits," he screamed. "Give me a chance and I'll follow you anywhere on earth." It took quite a lot of persuasion to make him believe that I would probably write for him later. If I hadn't resorted to that expedient I would never have gotten out of that barber shop.

Capital Greatly Amused by Disappointments of New Senators, Who Expect Great Prominence in Affairs and Get Small Roles

WASHINGTON, D. C.
There is nothing more self-sufficient in the world than a brand new member of the National House of Representatives unless it be a self-satisfied Republican millionaire who has turned from business to a seat in the United States Senate.

Whenever a seat on the New York Stock Exchange changes hands for astonishing prices news stories are printed throughout the land and cost companions are disavowed.

There seems to be no real basis of getting at the truth the prices men pay for seats in the Senate. No Borah, Walsh, Norris or La Follette has been able to draft a corrupt practices statute which political managers can not evade.

The story has been kicking around Washington for years that Frank B. Kellogg and Peter Goetz Gerry spent more than Truman H. Newberry in their campaigns for the Senate. Yet, the former Senator from Michigan was stigmatized by the Senate, while Kellogg carried, and is likely to be returned to the Senate in 1930.

Those bits of political history are in fact merely to background the so-called successful business man willing to give himself to the public service.

A new Congressman is lost in Washington. He is less important than a new Pullman conductor on the Capitol Limited, or the Federal. A new Senator has less of a chance. He is supposed to take a back seat far over at the end of the row and to keep his mouth shut for a year at least. When he presumes to be a smart aleck, he gets into Henry Allen of Kansas has merited every time he has undertaken to be a wise-cracker among his Senatorial elders.

It is inevitable that the so-called "babes of the Senate" should rebel against the menial roles meted out to them in legislative procedure. They always do. They never get anywhere. It makes not the slightest difference whether they are Republicans or Democrats so long as they are neophytes.

The personnel of the Senate shifts every two years. A third of the membership must stand for re-election. Casualties are inevitable. New faces appear.

Consider the situation for just a moment.

A man seeking a Senatorial nomination against an incumbent must have a lot of money and be willing to spend it freely, or else he must have accomplished some impressive political stunt in his State.

If he has done the latter his party may pick him in the hope of carrying along other organization or machine candidates for lesser though vital offices.

In most instances the man with bags of gold is preferred, because the local machine cares very little about who is President of the United States or who is the United States Senator.

The nominee thinks he is just about the most important person in the United States. When he gets the returns on election night he thinks the world is his. He writes the "little woman" joy from the eyes of the "little woman" and tells her about the social glories soon to be hers—White House invitations, Cabinet wives pressing luncheon bids, diplomats bowing low and urging the condescension of her presence at a tea.

If they happen to be of the President's own political party the new Senators feel that if the President does not greet them in person at Union Station he will at least have Capt. Taylor Branson and the Marine Band, in full dress uniform, in the train shed. Naturally, nothing like that happens.

Just as naturally, your new Senator, unless he be of the intelligence of a Robert F. Wagner, which is too rare an exception to prove a rule, thinks everything is all wrong in Washington. The novice concludes that he is false to his campaign promises unless he is about to put "these old birds" in their proper places.

The Senate "babes" expect to be put on the Executive Committee because they once delivered a Rotary Club speech against Russian Bolshevism. They rate themselves Chairmanships of the Finance Committee because they had thought out the original Mellon tax reduction long before the Finance Committee had a meeting because the Committee on Appropriations looks after those things and is inclined to be jealous of its prerogatives.

RICHMOND CLUB HEARS ADDRESS ON GREATNESS

That the standard of an individual's personality is determined by his attitude of gratefulness and that the greatness of a nation is measured by the same spirit was brought out by Rev. Primus Bennett, pastor of the First Christian church in an address made yesterday before members of the Richmond club.

Rev. Bennett's theme was of "Thanksgiving" and he told of visiting recently many places of historical interest. Plymouth every where half of the first village of settlers is, the homes of pioneers of the country, saying "what did these Puritans bring to this country? Surely nothing of material wealth. But instead they carried with them a burning flame—a belief in God that gave them a distinguished character. Are we good descendants of these Puritans? Then the Puritans built large churches, filled with worshippers; but today the churches are poor, and the waiting line is before the movie house."

The speaker continued by telling of Roger Babson's book "Fundamentals of Prosperity" where the author writes "our present economic greatness we owe to our forefathers." Rev. Bennett added "Is it because we are rich that we need not be religious? Is our point of interest changing?"

Rev. Bennett displayed at the close of his address a nail fastened by anvil and sledge hammer from the roof of South Church in Boston, and also a piece of the bark from the tree under which George Washington took command of the American army. Two years ago this tree blew down, and most of its wood has been made into gavel for governors, officials and museums. Mrs. George Clarke and Miss Belle Woodford sang two duets, accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Bumgarner.

Richmond club yesterday discussed plans for the Alameda district convention next April, and Mrs. Mattie Chandler vice chairman of the convention committee spoke to the members. Sessions of the convention will be held at the Richmond club house, with the three other federated organizations serving as co-hostesses clubs. These include with Richmond club the Club Mendelssohn, the South Richmond Improvement club and the Civic Center club.

"The Technique of your Thanksgiving Dinner" will be the subject of next Monday's lecture, when a prominent dietitian will speak at the club house.

What Society Is Wearing

MRS. CHARLES FELL OWES GORDON STRESSES THE VOOGUE FOR MAUVE TWEED

Shades of mauve tweed fashion this smart ensemble worn by Mrs. Charles Fellows Gordon at the Monmouth County Hunt Meet on the Armory Haswell estate.

An interesting detail of the suit is the soft little wooly jumper of solid lavender slipped beneath the cardigan jacket.

With the ensemble Mrs. Gordon wore a deep violet felt hat, silver fox scarf, light beige stockings, one-strap sandals and carried a brightly colored fabric bag. White chamois gloves furnished a note of contrast.

Wines, reds and mauves were much in evidence at the meet as were forest green and tones of copper-fall shades that blend well with the brilliant landscape at this season of the year.

Job In Family Two Generations

CANTERBURY, N. H.—For 106 years, the financial affairs of the local Baptist society have been in charge of two generations of one family. Miss C. Clough, 68, has just resigned as treasurer after 50 years' service. Before her father, the Rev. Jeremiah Clough, held the office for 56 years.

$150,000 FOR LOCAL YULE SHOPPERS

More than $150,000 will be distributed in Richmond within the next few weeks by local banking establishments to members of the Christmas saving clubs. Of this amount, more than $125,000 will be distributed by the Mechanics Bank of Richmond, one of the first banks here to sponsor this type of savings accounts.

Throughout the United States, 8,000 banks will distribute $600,000,000 to 9,000,000 members of the Christmas clubs, according to H. F. Rawlin, president of the Christmas club, a division of the National Bancservice corporation.

This, according to Rawlin, is a new record for the club, being 10 per cent in excess of last year's figures and more than five times the amount accumulated in 1920.

The average amount received by each member is $35.50, a slight increase over 1928, Rawlin said. Checks to members run from $12.50 to $1,000.

This total sum represents the accumulated savings for the past 50 weeks in Christmas club accounts in banks, trust companies, savings and loan associations, and other institutions.

Starting about Dec. 1, and before the middle of January, these accounts are opened at various financial institutions and the members select the class of payments best suited to their individual requirements, and based upon the total accumulation desired the following Christmas season. Payments continue for the ensuing 50 weeks. There are no fines, no dues, and all the money is returned by the bank in one lump sum just before Christmas.

19 Years Old
The inception of the Christmas club idea, 19 years ago, anticipated the need of providing an easy, simple and practical method of systematically accumulating funds, and the history of the Christmas club, its sponsors, however, in the creation of the plan, were mindful of the opportunity it would bring to wage-earners of systematic permanent savings by encouraging small weekly deposits, and the history of the Christmas club plan would indicate that it has been a real contribution to economic progress in this accomplishment and in thrift development.

On a basis of a direct-by-mail inquiry to individual Christmas club members, it is estimated by Rawlin that more than 10,000,000 permanent savings accounts, directly traceable to the club, have been brought to banking institutions during the past nineteen years, and that 62 per cent of the annual accumulation of $600,000,000 is put to constructive uses.

Had His Iron

ON WAY to recovery at Ellen Prince Speyer hospital for animals in New York is this young police dog after physicians took 14 stove bolts, three nails and an assortment of carpet tacks from stomach. He had rickets and craved iron.

TELEPHONE GIRL SAVES MANY IN SERIOUS HOSPITAL FIRE

Those who had been in the burning section being cared for in the other wards.

The conflagration was almost exactly the same as the one that caused 127 deaths in the Cleveland Clinic several months ago except the explosion of the X-ray films was not severe. Spontaneous combustion probably started the fire.

Patients Rescued
As Miss Costenbolder flashed the alarm, more than 100 nurses, interne and doctors began administering to the needs of the patients, assuring them all would be taken care of.

The fire department responded quickly and in a few minutes 40 firemen with gas masks and chemicals went directly through the wall of flame. A large number of films had been stored outside the hospital and construction of the building in separate units was praised by fire officials.

In the meantime removal of the afflicted was proceeding as if a drill was in progress. In wheel chairs or on stretchers the sick persons were taken to the lawn outside the building.

Acts Of Heroism
Isola Moores, a student nurse recovering from an appendicitis operation, jumped from her bed and carried Mrs. Joe Introzzi, a patient, unable to walk to the sidewalk.

"The student nurses undoubtedly saved the lives of more than 150 patients," Charles J. Brennan, fire chief said. "Due to the quick action by Miss Costenbolder they got to them before the deadly fumes spread and carried them out of reach. Most of the nurses were at their posts two minutes after the fire was detected. The community should express its gratitude in no uncertain manner."

Two hours and ten minutes after the fire broke out the patients were being returned to their rooms and the fire apparatus was being taken away.

Routine Resumed
Late in the forenoon nurses were working with infants thru the blackened corridors, carrying on with their regular duties again.

Graciously and with broad smiles, Miss Costenbolder received all visitors who cared to step to her door and there were many of them.

Strangely she had no requests to make when her congratulators offered to bring her anything she wanted. She only thanked them. Her eyes twinkled when a nurse brought her water soaked purse and coat, saying "the girls" wanted to do everything they could to help her.

To Be Out Soon
"You can just thank them for me," she said, "and tell them I will probably be out again tomorrow."

Miss Costenbolder has travelled extensively, her father, W. L. Costenbolder, once being stationed at Manila. She went through business college and three years ago started work as a telephone operator. She has been at the hospital switchboard a little more than a year.

"Just think what can happen in 24 hours," she commented. "Last night when I went to work after seeing a show, little did I think it would be a continued picture for me with everyone saying so many nice things to me."

GIRL TELLS OWN STORY OF FLAMES
EDITORS NOTE: The following article was written for the United Press by Miss Juanita Costenbolder, telephone operator at the University of California hospital in San Francisco, who has been acclaimed as a heroine for helping the rescue of 194 patients of the hospital during a third-alarm fire today. She tells of "my most thrilling experience" in R. B. JAVITA COSTENBOLDER

Written for the United Press
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—About 4:20 a. m. I was sitting there at the switchboard and I heard a noise like some one frying eggs. As I turned around I saw smoke coming underneath the door and a terrible celluloid smell.

I rushed to the door to be met by a terrible wall of fire right across the floor in front of me. So I slammed the door and ran to the board and called the main office, engine room and two wards closest the flames.

Choked By Fumes
By that time the door burst into flames. I couldn't see any more as I was choking from the fumes.

So I ran to the window, broke the screen, climbed out and yelled fire several times. Then I laid a little prayer and made a big leap. I was there on the ground until a policeman picked me up.

I saw three doctors hanging on their window sills above me. They waited until firemen put up ladders for them.

Averts Pit
I had to jump across a cement ditch five feet wide and ten feet deep. I narrowly missed going to the bottom of that pit.

Teachings from my father probably helped me in the emergency because he was a master sergeant in the army air squadron. Fire rules were to call the main office and engine room in case of fire.

It was the most thrilling experience of my life, especially going through the air without a parachute.

I was particularly pleased to do what I did to convince people that the Cleveland fire was exceptional and such events are not usual in hospitals.

NATURAL GAS GIVEN ODOR

Natural gas coming from the gas wells at the gas fields and after being run through the absorption plant where gasoline and other light oils are extracted, is delivered into the mains without odor or color, for transportation to the point of use.

In order to give the gas an odor which serves as a warning should there be any leaks in the pipes or unlighted burners left turned on, the Pacific Gas and Electric company has perfected special equipment through which an odorant in the form of a light oil will be sprayed into the gas.

This equipment has been installed on the main transmission lines from the gas fields at Fresno, San Jose and Hollister. The sprayed gas will have an odor similar to the manufactured gas and will be quite noticeable should there be leaks or unlighted burners left turned on.

MARTINEZ, Nov. 18.—Resolutions of intention to levy a special tax were today adopted by the board of supervisors. The tax will run over a period of three years to raise $50,000 to aid in the purchase of additional lands for Mt. Diablo park.

Alameda county will match the Contra Costa fund, and the total of the two will be matched by $100,000 appropriated by the state. It is estimated that the tax levy would not exceed two cents on each assessed valuation each year for three years.

Prejudice Thrives Where Ignorance Hives! AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE beckons all to cultivate knowledge. Tyranny, intolerance and poverty wither as schools grow in this great land of opportunity.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

STUDEBAKERS, SANTA FE, NATIONALS, CAGE WINNERS

The most exciting city league basketball card in many seasons was played last night in the Roosevelt gymnasium. The Studobakers were victorious over the Oleum Union Oil in a fierce battle that ended 25 to 24, and the speedy Santa Fe squad was defeated 18 to 17 by Garfinkle's. The Nationals managed to defeat the Civic Center Tires by a score of 22 to 19 in a B division contest.

The score was tied one minute before the final whistle in the Studobaker-Oleum contest. Then Hutton, Studobaker running guard came to the rescue by sinking the foul shot that decided the contest. Studobakers had a sensational defense which the Oleum cagers had difficulty in breaking through.

Civic Contest. The odds were about even in the first half of the Garfinkle-Santa Fe game, though the Santa Fe boys started out with a faster attack. The Garfinkle squad then gained a five point lead in the first part of the third quarter, and held it during the remainder of the period. Things then commenced to get hot, and the score changed to a 17 to 17 tie. With the last minute of play rapidly vanishing, Lemkuhl sank the winning foul shot for Garfinkle's. The Nationals maintained a small lead during the first half over the Civic Center Tires in the B league contest, but the Tires staged a fierce rally in the last two periods which threatened the prestige of the Nationals. However, the National squad prevented the Tires from gaining the margin of three points.

Thursday Games. Furre's and Ben Malika will clash in the main event on the Richmond city league card for Thursday night in the Roosevelt gymnasium. The Mastercraft Roofers and the Santa Fe Renegades will meet in a B division game at seven o'clock, and the Santa Fe Indians of the B league will tangle with Mammy's Place at nine o'clock.

The starting lineup for the Studobakers last night was: A. Muth (6), Huzefka, forwards; B. Muth (12), center; Hutton (4), running guard; Tamm, standing guard. The Studobaker substitutes were Gadbury (3), forward; and Cornell, running guard.

Oleum Lineup. The Oleum starting lineup was Anderson (10), Tomas (3), forwards; Martin (5), center; Bray (4), running guard; Atkinson, standing guard. The Oleum substitutes were Nisson (2), center; Gonzales, standing guard.

Garfinkle's lineup was Barbieri (8), Gillan (9), forwards; Lemkuhl (1), center; G. Gordon, running guard; Lee, standing guard. The substitutes for Garfinkle's were Flynn, center; Millicovich, standing guard.

Santa Fe Players. The starting lineup for Santa Fe was Roche, Tala (8), forwards; J. Nelson (2), center; E. Nelson (3), running guard; R. Bowen, standing guard. The Santa Fe substitutes were Gualdoni (3), Villalova (1), forwards; C. Bowen, standing guard.

The starting lineup for the Civic Center Tires was Linstedt (1), Seawright (2), forwards; Haltermann (2), center; Randall (13), running guard; Polese, standing guard. The substitutes for the Civic Center Tires were Craig, Murdock, forwards.

GRIDDERS NIGHT PLANNED BY SHRINERS

OAKLAND, Nov. 18.—Football Night is to be celebrated by the Shriners of Aahmes temple in this city tomorrow evening, according to an official announcement made here today by Potentate, Clare D. Horner. Football players, coaches, officials and critics, will be among the guests of honor.

The famous Aahmes temple band under direction of Noble Herman Trulmer, Jr., is to furnish music playing Stanford and California songs. The Aahmes Chanters, under direction of Noble "Brick" Morse, California class of '06, will add to the entertainment. "Brick" was at one time a California football hero. He is the author of "Songs of California" and "Hall to California." Both of these numbers which have been made famous throughout the United States and Europe by the California Glee Club, will be sung by the Shrine singing organization.

One of the guests of the evening will be Edgar Beard of Napa, the oldest living Big "C" man. Beard played center on the California varsity in the days before Stanford was on the educational map and he will tell the visiting Shriners a few things about the early day games.

Exra Decoto, past potentate of Aahmes temple and California's first graduate manager, will be another honor guest. There will be members of the California "wonder teams" present and there will be old timers who have fought in big games of the past as Sons of the Stanford Red.

This Football Night staged by the Shriners will serve as a big game rally and as the opening "shot" in the campaign to make the coming East-West game at Kezar stadium, Jan. 1, the biggest of all the annual Shrine games that have been played for the benefit of the San Francisco Hospital for Crippled Children.

Tickets for the annual East-West game were placed on sale today at Aahmes temple, Oakland and at Roos Bros., in Oakland and Berkeley. Spaulding's in Oakland also has these tickets on sale and they may be purchased at the Athens Athletic club in Oakland.

The gridders of Scout Troop No. 9 swamped Troop No. 3 by a score of 39 to 0 Sunday at Nicholl field. The winners easily smashed thru the line of Troop 3, and the losers were bewildered by the many aerial attacks of the Troop 9 gridders.

McCoy crashed through center from the two yard line for the third touchdown for Troop 9. McCoy soon repeated his line plunge for another touchdown. Pickering ran through a scattered field from the 30 yard line of Troop 3 for another six points in the third period. A pass from Grover to Woods accounted for the final touchdown. McCoy accounted for all three conversions.

The starting lineup for Troop 9 was: Woods, Wallan, ends; Matthews, Cooper, tackles; Jones, Bignall, guards; Heyne, center; Pickering, quarterback; Shaw, Miller, halfbacks; McCoy, fullback. The substitutes for Troop 9 were Westwood, halfback; Glover, quarterback.

Among the regulars who are eligible are Russell Avery, end, Oakland; Ted Beckel, tackle, Las Vegas, Nev.; Clarence Garrity, fullback, Homedale, Idaho; Jos Hickingbotham, fullback, Oakland; Ellis Thornton, end, Hollister; and Dolph Timmerman, tackle, Eureka.

The banquet will be held at the Cliff Hotel, San Francisco, after the game.

Today, McIlwain charged that he was attacked by Howard on the Oakland baseball field because Howard suspected him of "booby" his team.

DUCK SEASON CHANGE ASKED

MARTINEZ, Nov. 18.—A resolution urging the state legislature to change the dates on the opening and closing of the duck season, was today adopted by the board of supervisors.

The resolution came as the aftermath of a petition of the Contra Costa county mosquito abatement district, as a means to eliminate late season incursions of mosquitoes.

The board's resolution urges that the opening date be made Nov. 1, instead of Oct. 1, and the closing date be made Feb. 1, instead of Jan. 15, as it is now.

The supervisors were told by N. M. Stover, expert of the mosquito district, that an influx of mosquitoes in late September and early October was due to flooding of the duck ponds. Stover stated that a recurrence would be prohibited by a later opening of the season.

The adoption of the resolution here is to be followed by submission of similar resolutions in Solano and other counties, leading up to a formal appeal to the legislature to change the law.

San Pablo Nine Defeated By San Leandrans

The San Pablo baseball club was completely surprised Sunday when it was defeated 9 to 3 by the San Leandro nine in an Oakland Winter league contest.

Kardozza hurled a fine game for the San Leandro squad.

Line score:
San Leandro ..... 9 13 1
San Pablo ..... 3 8 3
Batteries: Kardozza and Vargas; Roberts, Ball and Gualdoni.

The local high school varsity was defeated 14 to 12 by Crockett last Friday in the first game of the season. The local B squad defeated the Crockett boys 28 to 19. The Richmond high school C's were defeated 10 to 4 by the Crockett lightweights.

Second Death President Hoover, who has kept constantly in touch with the hospital and visited the Secretary of War Friday night, was informed of his death immediately.

Hoover Aid To Business Meets Open

It is expected the conference will result in a program of suggestions to be laid before the American Association of Railway executives, which meets at Chicago Friday. The administration hopes the railroads will be able to go forward with their extensive programs for purchase of large amounts of engines, cars and other equipment. Cancellation of such large orders would start a cycle of difficulty which it is hoped will not be permitted to develop.

Developments today were: President Hoover cancelled all other engagements for the week to devote himself entirely to dealing with the business situation.

Building Plans The treasury announced that a program would be made to Congress to increase the public building authorization of the Federal government by $175,000,000 which would bring the total amount authorized up to $453,000,000. The present law limits the annual expenditure to $35,000,000 and Secretary Mellon would raise this limit to $50,000,000 to furnish additional work in many localities by building postoffices and government structures.

Postmaster General Brown announced action would be taken this week on applications filed by six large steamship lines for ocean mail contracts upon which they are depending for revenue to embark on the construction of about 25 large ocean liners at a cost of millions of dollars.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont announced an investigation of the possibilities of utilizing construction work, particularly that by states and local governments, which was undertaken some time ago, is being rushed to completion to be used in the current program.

QUAKE SHAKES ATLANTIC COAST

Belief that the quake may have been centered somewhere east of the seaboard in the Atlantic was expressed by cable companies.

Severe Shock Officials of Canisius College at Buffalo, New York, reported that their seismograph had registered a severe shock, which they described as being 1,200 miles distant. The tremor, they said, was "most extraordinary and severe."

In New York state the quake was severest at Albany, the state capital, where buildings were shaken and telegraph service temporarily disrupted.

Schenectady and Troy felt the tremors. At Holyoke, in western Massachusetts, two distinct shocks were felt, and at Taunton, in the southeastern part of the state, the quake was quite severe. In both places windows were broken, pictures shaken off the walls and dishes shattered.

Structures Sway At Boston, the custom house, tallest building in New England, shivered for about two minutes, beginning at 3:40 o'clock. Employees in the building said they could feel the structure sway during the quake.

East Bridgewater, Mass., was shaken severely for about five minutes.

At Concord, N. H., the tremor was barely perceptible, while at Newhall, Me., residents reported distinct rumblings.

The quake was not severe in the Hudson valley, although residents of Hudson and Kingston reported that they had felt it distinctly from 3:40 to 4:15 p. m.

Quakes Continue The Rev. J. J. Lynch, in charge of the seismograph instruments at Fordham University, said he believed the shock centered somewhere in the Hudson valley. The Fordham instruments were still recording tremors at 6 o'clock tonight.

The seismograph at St. Louis University recorded the shocks, and Father Joliet described them as very violent. He estimated the quake center to be between New Foundland and New Scotia.

MUST SEVERE IN 20 YEARS CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18.—(U.P.)—The earthquake which rocked the Atlantic seaboard this afternoon was the most severe ever recorded at the Harvard University seismograph station, which was established 20 years ago.

Harvard authorities stated that the "quake probably centered along the Fundian Fault in the Atlantic ocean, several miles off the Maine coast."

and William L. Dill, defeated candidate for governor of New Jersey in the last election, were deadlocked with four votes each.
